CND FESTIVAL 1986

INTRODUCTION

We were watching with delight a renowned weather prophet on T.V. last week who forecast a very hot, dry June, and after last year we have a vested interest in his credibility - but there will be other changes here too in 1986! A new addition will be a large marquee allocated solely to classical music under the direction of John Williams and other musicians from M.A.N.A. (Musicians Against Nuclear Arms). The Children's Area has been moved to a quieter part of the site and is being completely rebuilt. The Green Field is doubling in size and will host a debating tent for the exchange of various political ideas and intentions, and if England's football team is still in the World Cup at the quarter-finals we will have T.V. coverage of the game on a large screen for those of us who have to watch it.

I get the feeling that some of our supporters think that the Anti-Nuclear Campaign has lost its fervour and that the arguments for it have been put so many times without any reductions of arms. But when we took this campaign to the streets in 1980 there was little cause for optimism, and now that world leaders are actually talking about massive reductions of medium-range missiles in Europe, can we not be proud of our achievements, and is it not now the time to summon all the energy that we can to finish the job that we have so passionately pursued?

MUSIC

Over a hundred bands and solo artists will be appearing at the five stages throughout the weekend and every aspect of music is represented Whether its the strains of John Williams or the Burlesque of the Cabaret Stage, the local folk club atmosphere of the Acoustic Marquee or the overpowering acts of the worlds leading performers on the main stage. There is a lot for everyone.

THEATRE

For five years now the Glastonbury Festival has presented ever fuller programmes of contemporary theatre ranking among the foremost in Europe. From the stage greats to the the downright bizarre, both in the theatre area and around the site. 360 degrees of involvement and surprise. The Theatre area is now in a new, quieter position away from the centre.

CLASSICAL MUSIC

Another first for Glastonbury! . . . a new area created by John Williams with the support of a number of exceptionally talented M.A.N.A. musicians and we'll present a full 3 days of programmes.

CINEMA/CABARET

No need to trip to Cannes to see that film. Its here! The Classic, the Cult, the Comedy and the Provocative to satisfy even the most discerning. The cinema rolls nightly from 10.00pm till the early hours.

During the day Cabaret features in the big top, so while wining and dining you can watch a non-stop revue of acts including The Comic Strip!

GREENFIELD

A quiet oasis now enlarged offering space to relax and get away from the hubbub of the main festival. There's solar heated showers and a nature walk through the hills with rare plants being named or you can have a wandering Astrologer tell what lies in store. Greenpeace and the National Centre for Alternative Technology have displays here.

CHILDRENS WORLD

A Whole world created purely for the enjoyment of the thousands of children expected at this years festival. Now moved to a more peaceful area with all the delights to keep them involved all day. No problem getting them to bed after this!
